College Song

Davenport, our college fair,
Mid thy pines a stately queen.
Loving thee with hearts that dare
Loyal shall we e'er be seen.
Davenport, our hearts' delight,
Queen most excellently bright.

Throned on thy classic hill,
Calm thy gaze from year to year,
While thy children honor still,
Earth has not a spot more dear.
Davenport, our hearts' delight,
Queen most excellently bright.

Davenport, our shining queen,
We shall e'er thy mandates keep,
Ever stand in sunlit sheen
Of love so clear and deep,
Davenport, our hearts' delight,
Queen most excellently bright.

LOUISE ATWELL
DAVIDSON, N. C.

Tim Society; Glee Club; Life Service; Le Cercle Francais, '28; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '28; Robin Goodfellow Club, '28.

Louise is a regular songbird; she can play too. Therefore, we are prophesying a great future for her. She is sweet, cheerful, and friendly to all.

NELLIE BEAM
CHERRYVILLE, N. C.

Tim Society; Y. W. C. A.; Life Service; Home Ec. Art Club.

Nell's not a teacher,
No, not she;
But she likes teachers,
Oh my, me!
She "Deals" in Heavener,
Whoever they may be.
We know she'll get one of them.
Which? We'll wait and see.

BLANCHE BLANTON
LINCOLNTON, N. C.

Editor-in-Chief, "Hilltop Echoes", '28; Sec'y-Treasurer Class '27; President, Chem Bo Phi '27-'28; Tim Society; Y. W. C. A.; Treasurer Y. W. C. A., '28; Masquer, '27-'28; Secretary Marquers, '28; Student Council, '27; Sec'y-Treasurer Student Council, '28; Robin Fellowship Club, '28; Le Cercle Francais, '27; Class Poet, '28; Sec'y-Treasurer Class, '28.

Blanche is a beautiful girl who looks like a flapper, but she possesses one of the keenest minds on the hill. She has proved to be a very capable leader, both in her scholastic work and in outside activities. Because of her cleverness, wit, and friendliness, she is one of the most popular girls at D. C.

LUCILE BURNETTE
DURHAM, N. C.

Tim Society; Y. W. C. A.

Laughing brown eyes, curly brown hair, just enough dignity to make charm, and always full of fun—of course it's Lucile. When she isn't getting shorthand, she is ready for anything. Do we love her? Well, we do. We know that she'll be successful at anything—whether it's working at Rocky Mount, or attending Evangelistic meetings.

Hilltop Echoes

MARY BERTHA CORDELL CONCORD, N. C.

Tim Society; Life Service; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet '28; Vice-President Robin Godfellow Club, '28; Student Council, '27-'28.

Mary Bertha is always a sincere friend and a conscientious student. She possesses a strong will, and is universally loved, both for her inherent loveliness and her frankness of nature.

BESS CRUMP NORWOOD, N. C.

Tim Society; Chem Bo Phi; Life Service; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '28.

"Sweet, true, and always kind,
A better pal no one will find."
Steady, clever, ambitious, fun-loving, a good all-round girl—that's Bess.

AGNES DUKE NORWOOD, N. C.

Tim Society; Student Council, '27-'28; Life Service; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '28; Chem Bo Phi.

There is a "Ray" of sunshine to be found in the darkest places when "Ag" is around. She possesses a wonderful personality which leads you to love her, for by her winning ways she has won a place in the heart of everyone who knows her. She succeeds because of her ambitions.

BETTY FUSSELL ROSE HILL, N. C.

Y. W. C. A.; Home Ec. Art Club; Tim Society.

They say that the way to a man's heart is to feed him; so the man that gets Betty will be lucky. How do we know? We've been to her room and sampled her cooking.

RACHEL GODFREY
WAXHAW, N. C.

Y. W. C. A.; Sec. Sid Lanier Society, '27-'28; Chem Bo Phi; Le Cercle Francais, '28; Hikers Club; Robin Goodfellow Club, '28.

Our first impression of this tiny lady is that of a big, brown-eyed doll, but add to this outward semblance a store of wit, a vivid personality, a never failing sense of fairness, and we have the charming young woman—Rachel.

ESTHER HASTINGS
KERNERSVILLE, N. C.

Queens College, '27; Basket Ball Team, '26-'27; Hikers Club; Sid Society; '28; Y. W. C. A.

Who is that laughing and so gay?
"It is Esther," everyone starts to say.

Everyone knows Esther as a girl who is always smiling and is friendly to all. She will long be remembered for her cheery smile at D. C..

MARY ELIZA HARSHAW
LENOIR, N. C.

Salem College, '27; Sid Society; Robin Goodfellow Club.

The tall, attractive, striking-looking girl with the happy-go-lucky smile is Mary "Liza. We feel that not only girls "Rush" to be in her favor but the men also—by the "ton."

KATHERINE HARTSELL
MIDLAND, N. C.

Tim Society, '27; Sid Society; Y. W. C. A.

Is Katherine popular? Decidedly. Like Postum, "there's a reason." She believes in taking eevrything as it comes, and worrying over nothing. She leaves the frowns and cares to someone else. Why should she be bothered with them? Your good nature will take you anywhere, Kat, so "step on the gas."

Hilltop Echoes

RUTH HUNEYCUTT

DENVER, N. C.

Life Service, Leader '27-'28; Student Council, First Vice-Pres, '27-'28; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '27-'28; Tim Society; Masquers, '27-'28.

Devoted—this word reminds us of Ruth—always devoted to the things most worth while. As a leader in the religious activities of the college, she has truly been an example worth following. Sincere friend, loyal, through dark and fair—this is Ruth.

ELIZABETH HUNT

JAMESTOWN, N. C.

Life Service; Y. W. C. A. Vice-Pres, '27-'28; Chem Bo Phi; Student Council, Second Vice-Pres, '27-'28; Robin Goodfellow Club, '28; Tim Society; Le Cercle Francais.

Lib can't be beaten—absolutely. She's bright, popular, good and witty. And if you think you can tease Lib and get the best of her, just try it. Good old Lib!

MARY LEE HUNT

JAMESTOWN, N. C.

Tim Society; Life Service; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet '28; Robin Goodfellow Club, '28; Home Ec Art Club.

Mary Lee is one of the most dependable girls in school. She is a true friend, and has many other good traits. Her greatest desire is to be a home economics teacher, and we are quite sure she will succeed.

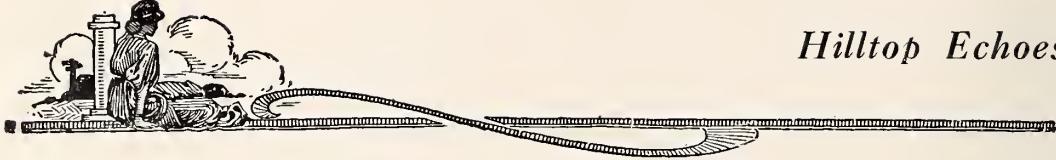

LUCILE MARTIN

DANBURY, N. C.

Tim Society; Y. W. C. A.; Robin Goodfellow Club '28; Hikers Club; Life Service; Basket Ball '27.

Curly hair, bright, blue eyes, ready smile, charming manners, truest friend, bestest sport. That is truly Lucile.

Hilltop Echoes

KATHLEEN McCONNELL
JEFFERSON, N. C.

Duke University '26; Y. W. C. A.; Tim Society Pres. '28; Home Ec Club '28; Hi Ten Club '28; Masquers Vice-Pres. '28; Robin Goodfellow Club Pres. '28; Business Manager, "Hilltop Echoes" '28; Writer of Class Song.

When it comes to "morts"—good mists—Kat has 'em. She is most popular, most democratic, most sincere, and holds the most offices. As for Kat's being good sport—ASK Davenport.

LAZELLE MITCHELL
CRAMERTON, N. C.

Chem Bo Phi; Life Service; Tim Society Treas. '28; Masquers; Hi Ten Club; Robin Goodfellow Club '28; Le Cercle Francais '28; Class Historian; Tim Debater, '27-'28; Y. W. C. A. President '28; Basket Ball '27.

Here is a nature with as many sides as Bluebeard's wives. She can adapt herself to any situation—but always she's just "Lazy" with hosts of friends.

REBEKAH PHILIPS
NEWTON, N. C.

Tim Society; Le Cercle Francais; Student Council '28; Home Ec. Club '28; Pres. Y. W. C. A.; Hikers Club; May Queen '28.

Sweetness and charm characterize "Becky." It would be a good thing if we had more girls like her on our campus. She never worries because she gets on beautifully without doing so. She is lovable, capable, loyal, pretty, and popular with these queenly qualities, she is sure to succeed.

EUNICE QUERY
HUDSON, N. C.

Y. W. C. A.; Life Service; Tim Society, Sec. '27; Robin Goodfellow Club; Masquers '28; Le Cercle Francais, Pres. '28; Student Council Pres. '27-'28; Vice Pres. Class '27-'28; Class Attendant, May fete, '27-'28.

"Little, but —." No, I won't say loud, for she is never that but she certainly does have the power to make people sit up and take notice. She has an enviable number of good qualities: Intellect, Generosity, Dependability, Attractiveness—Mere words fail to describe "Little Eunice." She is truly our "bes-all-round" Senior.

Hilltop Echoes

PANSY RUTHERFORD

CANDLER, N. C.

Y. W. C. A.; Athletic Ass. '26; Hikers Club; Sidd Society; Treas. Le Cercle Francais.

Pansy was voted the most accommodating member of our class. And so she is, with the additional gift of dependability. "Not over-serious, not too gay, but a rare good fellow—that's Pansy."

HELEN SAUNDERS

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Y. W. C. A. Cabinet '28; Tim Society; Masquers; Glee Club; Robin Goodfellow Club; Asst. Bus. Mgr. "Hilltop Echoes" '27; Business Manager "Hilltop Echoes" '28; Charlotte Club.

Can Helen: Make good grades, get ads, dance well, sing beautifully, and speak fluently? Sure, she can, and heaps more too. Wasn't she voted the most versatile in her class? And we all agree that she deserves it. No one but Helen herself has a vocabulary adequate for praising her sufficiently, but may we humbly say: "She is Marvelous."

FRANCES SHERRILL

CATAWBA, N. C.

Greensboro College, '26; Tim Society; Y. W. C. A.; Masquers '28; Glee Club; Hi Ten Club.

Fluffy blonde hair, and blue eyes—Frances—Is she a fresh-man? Certainly not? She is one of the sweetest, most attractive most talented, and most lovable girls in the Senior Class. She is not dignified because she doesn't think it necessary, and that is one of the reasons why we love her. We're wishing her the best in everything and we know she'll get it.

GEORGIA SHERRILL

NEWTON, N. C.

Tim Society '27; Y. W. C. A.; Sid Society Vice-Pres. '28; Glee Club '28; Le Cercle Francais '28.

Baby grand piano, wistaria on a trellis, shaded leaves and walks—these things spring to our minds when we think of Georgia. We also think of twilight on a jolly antibellum plantation, with the sweet sound of singing voices lingering on the summer air. But do not think for a moment that she is ethereal—she is the most human and most likeable of humans.

KATHRYN SCOTT
JEFFERSON, N. C.

N. C. C. W. '27; Robin Goodfellow Club; Chem Bo Phi; Hikers Club; Sid Society; Y. W. C. A.; Dramatic Club.

"A friend in need is a friend indeed." You may look all over Davenport campus but you will not find a truer friend than Kat. Cute, petite, and demure—That's Kat.

MARGUERITE SUDDRETH
LENOIR, N. C.

Sid Society; Robin Goodfellow Club; Home Ec. Club; Art Club; Le Cercle Francais.

Marguerite is the charmingly attractive girl with the delightful accent. She is a splendid student and one of the reasons why we claim the honor ours is that ours is a very talented class. We unite as one voice in hoping the best for her.

JO SWANSON
PILOT MOUNTAIN, N. C.

Tim Society; Home Ec. Club; Masquers; Y. W. C. A.; Hikers Club; Basket Ball '27.

Optimistic—with never a thought of worries. Witty—with a joke or prank for all occasions, and kind—even to dumb animals, indifferent, crazy, loving, fascinating, JO. JO. To her friends her friendship is the greatest asset of their college life.

MARIE TERRELL
WAYNESVILLE, N. C.

Tim Society; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet; Masquers Club Treas.; Student Council '26-'27; Hikers Club; "D" Club '27; Glee Club Treas.; Senior Class Pres. '28.

A true blue eyed beauty, sincere, most capable, sweet, always considerate of others, a striking personality, and still with all this she is unusual in a way that makes every one admire her. In other words she has "IT"—That's Marie.

Hilltop Echoes

VERNA UNDERWOOD

MT. HOLLY, N. C.

Y. W. C. A.; Tim Society; Chem Bo Phi; Robin Goodfellow Club; Life Service, Sec. '28.

Verna possesses many admirable traits, and is a girl well worth seeking out and knowing. Her sweetness is her distinguishing characteristic, and will always remain as one of the brightest spots in our memory of her.

DOROTHY WAGG

CONNELLY SPRINGS, N. C.

Masquers, Pres. '28; Tim Society, V.-Pres. '28; Y. W. C. A. Sec. '28; Hikers Club; Le Cercle Francais '28; Class Attendant May Fete, '27-'28.

"Some are friends for a season,
Some are friends for a time,
Some are friends for a reason,
But Dots a friend all the time."

Added to her friendliness are these qualities: Vivacity, Frankness, a Sparkling Sense of Humor, Talent, Beauty, Reliability, Firmness, and Good Sportsmanship. We all Don't think that anyone need wonder why our Dot is the Most Popular in school.

RUTH WOLFF

RURAL HALL, N. C.

Tim Society; Y. W. C. A.; Chem Bo Phi.

The quintessence of neatness, the very echo of silence, the incarnation of friendship, the personification of all womanly virtues—that's Ruth. The gods generously added a real sense of humor and a deep appreciation of the worthwhile.

TOMBOY

(LAZELLE MITCHELL)

"Good-bye, mother, don't work too hard. In the spring you'll be proud of your little tomboy, Gertie. I'm going to college to do my best and make people know that a person can be named Jones and yet be somebody."

This promise Gertrude Gather Jones made to her mother when she boarded the train for Kinsington University. Gertie's family consisted of her mother and herself. Her mother in her young days, had belonged to the first family of the first town in the first county of North Carolina. But when this first girl fell in love she fell out of the lap of luxury into the scramble of poverty. Mr. Jones had been a clerk in one of her father's clothing stores and, because he was so extremely fascinating, the belle of the town had immediately promised to marry him on the condition that he live up to his ambitions and promises, which he never did.

So to-day, after many years of planning and scrimping and sewing, Mrs. Jones had saved enough to send Gertie to college.

When Gertrude reached Kinsington and saw her room-mate she was quite "taken back." There stood a girl that might have been a mannequin, so far as clothes were concerned. She was perfectly dressed from the crown of her head to the soles of her expensive looking lizard skin shoes. On the bed lay a squirrel coat (Quite out of season, Gertie thought, even though she did not know what perfectly chic looking school girls wore.).

Gertie smiled and extended her hand. "My name's Gertrude Gather Jones. I suppose you are my room-mate. If you are, you may call me 'Gertie.' All my best friends do."

"Yes, I suppose I'm your room-mate, Gertrude," and Gertrude's room-mate left the room.

Gertrude smiled, plumped her hat-box down on the bed and began rambling through it for a dress.

It was twelve o'clock when her room mate returned. Just as Gertrude was crawling into bed Rosamond came in, flung her hat on the bed, and seated herself on the edge of her trunk.

"Darn it! This is the rottenest hole I've hit. If it wasn't for a darling boy I met while ago, I'd go straight back to Halifax."

"Who is the boy? I'm all ears," Gertie demanded.

"Oh, he's supposed to be the biggest boy on the campus. He's Gary Charles, son of the man who gave the money for the school of aviation, et cetera. Good looking? Oh, boy!"

"Hush, don't tell me any more. I'm up here determined to study and I positively won't be tempted thus."

"Huh, I'm supposed to be here for that, too, but gosh! a girl's got to have some fun. I'll tell you something if you won't tell it. Ma was about not to send me because she could not give me all the clothes I wanted because I always swore to her that if she wanted me to go to college she'd have to let me have loads of cute clothes. Well, I got a job peeling potatoes in the kitchen when they need me. I can make enough like this to pay for my clothes. Don't, for heaven's sake, tell it. But its either peel spuds or wear shabby clothes for this lady."

"My goodness! is it so outrageous to peel spuds? Why I've got a job like that, too, only I'm peeling them to pay for books and tuition."

Gertie had not many days to stay on the campus to see that Rose knew what she was talking about, so far as Gary Charles was concerned. Surely he was all one boy could be; president of his society, a member of the best fraternity, the real star on the football team, and the best aviator in the school of aviation. It seemed that everywhere people were calling for or asking about Gary. Yet she had not seen him. From what she had heard Rose say of him, though, she felt that she would recognize him the minute she saw him: deep blue eyes, sandy hair, tall, clear cut, strong and silent.

Then one day, quite by accident, she met him. She and Rose were coming from the usual half-hour of spud-peeling before lunch when Gary overtook them. Rose, who always carried a nail file, compact and comb with her to the kitchen, was looking quite as fresh as when she had left the dormitory. Even though Gertie had rushed from a class straight to the kitchen, she was almost as goodlooking as Rose. Hers was a complexion that only has to be powdered once or twice a day to always look at its best, and her hair, when she gave it a chance, curled in endless little waves all over her head.

"Gary, this is my room mate, Miss Jones," Rose introduced her.

Gary took Gertie's extended hand and held it so long that when they both "came to" all three of them were quite embarrassed.

"Are you girls going out for track?" he asked as they walked on.

"No, I don't think I shall. I think running and jumping is so unladylike. I'm so glad that at home mother always made my nurse see that I did not become a tomboy," Rose answered.

"And you, Miss Jones?"

"Yes, I think I shall. It may be tomboyish and all that, but I love to run. I know I need never even hope to win but I'm going out for it just because I love it."

When they reached the dormitory and Gary left them, Rose turned to Gertie.

"Of all the dumb idiots I've ever seen, you are the dumbest. Haven't you got any sense at all about men?"

"Not much. Why?"

"Don't you know that above all things Gary hates a tomboy—all men of his type do."

"Rose, I fairly believe you think I was trying to vamp Gary Charles. Well, I wasn't. I just told him the truth, and the truth is accepted in Heaven."

"Maybe so in Heaven, but not by men. I 'spose you'd even tell him that you peeled potatoes to pay your tuition."

"Of course I wolud if he asked me. It's nothing to be ashamed of."

When the time came for practice both girls went out for the track team. Gertie practiced faithfully and was soon the best runner on the team. When the day for the track meet came, she was placed at the head of her team. Apparently, with all ease, she got her team in line. When the whistle blew they were all in perfect condition.

Gary, as one of the time-keepers, was in a position to get a close-up of her. In the short gym suit she was beautiful. Her body was well-rounded and well proportioned. Every movement was free and easy.

Rose, who sat by him, wondered rather indignantly, why he thought Gertie so interesting when he wasn't the type to admire tomboys.

At the close of the race, Gertrude had won. Gary was one of the first to congratulate her. Indeed, he quite forgot that at that moment he had an engagement with Miss Rosamond Parrish. When the cheering and congratulating was over Gary walked with Gertie to her dormitory and as he left he gave her the amazing information that he would see her at eight o'clock.

Eight o'clock came, and with it came Gary with an offering of American Beauties.

This story might have ended here by merely saying "and they lived happily ever after" if it had not been for Rose. Just as Gary would make up his mind that Gertie was the girl, along would come dear, sweet little Rose, and his dreams of Gertie would tumble.

One morning toward the end of school, a crowd of them were to go to the top of the nearest mountain to see the sun rise. To do this meant rising at four o'clock and hiking to the top of the mountain. Gary asked both girls to go with him. He asked Rose first. She immediately told him she had some reading to do and that she thought she would get up in the morning and sit on the campus to read. Besides she didn't go in for hiking. Then he asked Gertie and she accepted because she loved the sunrise and everything that goes to make a lovely May morning.

Promptly at four the following morning Baby Ben pealed forth. Gertie yawned, stretched and got up.

When she reached the campus there stood Gary, tall, blond, and smiling. Together they walked through the semi-darkness up to the top of the mountain.

When they reached the top everything was midnight blue and hazy. They had been there only a few minutes when there appeared in the east a faint pinkish glow. This deepened and became wider toward the west; there also appeared a faint golden glow, lightly covering the blue. Slowly, one by one, the stars were receding. The pink in the east and the gold of the western sky were each reaching out as if to touch the other. The expanse of the sky between them was becoming blue and lighter.

As they watched, the colors slowly came together, covering the blue and making a perfect lavender curtain. Then, at the very top of the next mountain—almost on it, it seemed—there appeared a most golden gold. It rose higher and higher, changing the whole sky of lavender and blue to one huge opal. As the gold widened, fleecy white clouds appeared. Finally there was no pink and blue. Just gold. The treetops were gold, the mountains were gold, all the world was gold!

Gertie reached out her hand to Gary's and held it hard.

The golden veil was parting in the middle. Here and there around the edge appeared streaks of blue: wider and wider apart the curtain was drawn, and they saw the white, snowy clouds float past in a sea of blue. At the bottom of the sea, close to the earth, a huge golden ball came up from out the "fathomless depths" and climbed over the top of the mountain. Just as it reached the top it paused a moment, a grand glorious ball of fire, making the whole world recognize it as king of the day. Then, with pompous, smiling dignity it proceeded up thru the sea of blue.

Spellbound, the gazers sat for a moment, neither daring to break the silence. In just a minute a tiny grey squirrel skinned across a dry twig. It cracked. The spell was broken. They rose in silence and started back down the mountain. Gary looked at Gertie and what he saw in her eyes made him take her hand a little tighter and realize that, for better or worse, he'd rather have the tomboy and the sunrise than the Alice-sit-by-the-fire and a book.

SKEPTICS

(HAZEL HARRINGTON)

Living next door to singing lessons, we are informed throughout the year, and in long forceful tones, exactly what season it now is, and furthermore what season will follow. Occasionally, our voice calendar is a little premature, as in telling us that "Spring is here" when it is impossible for even a Christian Scientist to deny the reality of the sleet outside.

"Spring is here!" we are informed in shrill accents! Not only once a day, but dozens of times, from mid-winter to actual Spring. We are never allowed to forget the golden maribuds! I am beginning to evolve a keen interest to know what maribuds are, but that they have "winking eyes" I am certain. Flirtatious things!

"It's morning, it's morning," comes the clarion cry. This is never a truism, but we cannot deny it. What of it? My room mate and I peevishly ask one another. "Even if it really were, we would know it, I hope, we sometimes add, albeit unconvincingly.

"Sleep, my little one, oh sleep!" we hear flaringly in impassioned tones. How nice not to be the unfortunate infant, we think. No wonder children are ungrateful and whoever wrote, "How sharper than a toothless child it is to have a thankless snake!" or words to that effect, certainly did not know what he was talking about, in my mind. (However I am always open to conviction.)

Next we are implored to "Hark to the mandolin," or it may be (Meadowlark), or a combination of both. This used to encourage us for a little, but we know now it is only farce, as we are never given a chance to hark to anything.

THE ROBIN

(MARGUERITE SUDERTH)

"Have you ever seen a robin in the early, early Spring?
As he perkily comes a-hopping and a-bobbing on the green,
With his small black eyes a-beaming and his rosy breast a-gleaming
Bringing smiles to all who see him; unaware of the joy he brings."

"Though the winds may still be blowing with the chill of winter's breath,
Undaunted on a budding twig he sings his level best.
He is singing of the joys of the coming of the Spring,
As he teeters on his lofty perch, the twig that is a swing."

"Seeing him will bring a gladness which steals softly o'er your heart,
And all of winter's sadness from you will then depart;
For he's heralding the coming of the crocuses of spring,
And he brings the buds of Maytime on his sturdy little wing."

MEANING ANYTHING BUT THE NECK.

When Helen Saunders went out to her college mother's for dinner, she was asked what part of the chicken she preferred. She answered: "It is quite inconsequential to my recognized abstemiousness and supersensitive stomachie nervation whether I be tendered an infinitesimal portion of the opaque nutrient of the nether extremities, the superior fraction of a pinion, or the snowy cleavage from the cardiac region."

BITS OF MODERN VERSE (Borrowed)

SHADES

So many shades.

Shades of night, shades of death,
Shades of my ancestors,
Spirit shades, and window shades,
Shade of a tree,
Shades of meaning.

There are none of these in this bit of verse.

BLOOD.

Blood, a ghoulish mass,
Red, darkish clots,
Choked, groaming molecules,
Dry-edged, telling of Blackness and Death.

Schubert had a horse named Sarah,
Rode her in the big parade.
Then the brass band started playing—
Schubert's Sarah neighed.

Lois Parks: "Why?"

Edith: "It spoils my appetite."

The earth makes a resolution every twenty-four hours.

The difference between air and water is that air can be made wet and water cannot.

We are now masters of steam and eccentricity.

Things that are equal to each other are equal to anything else.

Gravity is chiefly noticeable in the autumn when the apples are falling from the trees.

The axis of the earth is an imaginary line on which the earth takes its daily routine.

A parallel straight line is one which if produced to meet itself does not meet.

Electricity and lightning are of the same nature, the only difference being that lightning is often several miles long while electricity is only a few inches.

A British scientist predicts that, in time to come, men will be born toothless. We thought, in our ignorance, they usually were born that way.

Lucille Bennett applied for a job as stenographer. The employer wanted a serious-minded young lady so he put Lucile to a test.

"Well, my girl, what would you do with a million dollars?" he asked.

"Oh, glory! I don't know—I was not expecting so much at the start."

After much excitement the Smiths had at last managed to catch the train.

Now, when they could sit quietly for a while, they began to wonder if they had left anything behind.

Mrs. Smith gave a shriek.

"Oh, Harry," she gasped, "I forgot to turn off the electric iron!"

"Don't worry, darling, I forgot to turn off the shower bath."

Sara Rachel: "Do you use tooth paste?"

Clara Cobb: "Mercy, no! None of my teeth are loose."

One of our seniors wrote the following letter home:

Dearest Mother:

I appreciate to the fullest extent your letting me come to Davenport. It has meant so much to me. I feel that now I am quite educated. We learned how to spell, write andd work trig. I have also met some very nice boys and young men, especially one. I have also learned to eat peas whether I like 'em or not and to chew chewing gum so that I can make it pop every time I champ down on it. The gym teacher told me Wednesday not to try to practice tennis any more as I was a hopeful case (she might of said hopeless, I didn't hear her real good) but anyway I felt real cheered up.

I'm getting my diplomy Tues. nite and I feel sure you'll be proud of me.

Yours for higher education,
DAUGHTER.

Mrs Jenkins: "The master was very happy this morning, Laura. He went to his office whistling."

Laura: "Yes, mum, it was my mistake. I made his porridge of bird seed."

Peggy Munn: "Mother, do liars ever go to heaven?"

Mother: "Why, no, dear, certainly not."

Peggy: "Well, it must be mighty lonesome up there with only God and George Washington."

* * * * *

Mrs. French: "Mary, did you wash the fish carefully before you baked them?"

Mary: "Why, ma'am, what's the use of washing fish that's lived all its life in the water?"

Agnes Duke (on Spanish Class): "I don't know what preposition to use with this verb."

Miss Wolff: "Well, Agnes, if you don't have it in your head I guess you'll have to look in your appendix for it."
